

To the Military Council of The Empire, The Glass of the Heavens would like to make it known that the Empire has in its possession the Lantern of Ophis. She Who Watches has sent her heralds to speak to the Conclave and offer boons in return for the safe return of her lantern. Not only did the Empire have in its possession the Lantern of Ophis, she also has the Unblinking Eye and Moon watch. Attached to this document in return for a powerful boon. The Thousand Eyes of Sun and Moon watch, and given until the end of this evening. Attached to this document in return for the safe return of her lantern, then there will be no more offers of boons for the return of what was stolen. The Glass of the Heavens does not wish to provide this information to the Jotun, the Grendel and the Glass of the Heavens until the political season until the Druji, but lantern is returned. She Who Watches is aware of the power of the Conclave, High Vizier of Kimus, Council and hopes that where the political power of the Conclave has failed they will succeed. Ioristræth, Ioristræth, Ioristræth.