

To my Doctor, who owns the Sorensdromen,

This Captain has taken your words of wisdom and Courage to heart. Brooding on the pain I have suffered is folly - it is only in action that resolution can be found!

So has your Captain taken the fight against the Druj. For weeks I have hunted them, pursued them through the woods. Ever have they evaded me - until now.

A skirmish - only a handful - they bested me, but I bested one of them. Alas, I am wounded. I know where they fled - but my wounds are harsh, and I would not give up yet.

If you would still be my Doctor, please come find me - where we met at the Solstice, in the woods of Sorensdromen, in beautiful Uttertund, in majestic Holberg.

Please, bring rest, and bring succour. We must arm ourselves against the foe, for I know where they hide. And they cannot hide for long!

Your Captain,
Vassa
