

To the great and good of Sarvo's, hello!

My name is Juliet Ferrara di Sarvo's and I am the Dean of Geography at Diora University where I have been asked to sell off some property to raise funds because it turns out the Bursar was keeping his cards very close to his chest about exactly how much the Grendel stole from the University and we have been running out of money for a while now.

I am coming to Anvil with a very beautiful map drawn up by Marieta Simoneta di Trivento, who was a scholar at the University about 200 years ago, as well as lots of other things, like we think she designed the flagship of the Barabbine fleet, but we cannot be sure - thanks, Nicovar! I hope that your Pride will swell in your heart when you see how our forebears viewed our Proud city and its environs.

I am very excited to go to Anvil so I will try to arrive in good time on the Friday evening while everyone is keen!

P.S. Please forgive my handwriting but I hurt my hand a while ago and it made writing a lot harder because of the bark. I get through a lot of nibs now.
