

*For Trystan Brackensong
With the representatives of the Navarri nation
Anvil*

Dear Trystan,

The Civil Service has come into possession of a document that we believe to relate to your past life, which was stored alongside an object that may be of more significance to you than to us.

I have sent an agent to find you as soon as possible at Anvil: my son Walt, who I believe you know, for he will have attended upon your vision. He is under strict instructions to deliver the ring and a copy of the document only to your hand.

Virtue guide you,

*Amanda Scriber
Assistant to the Mistress of Troubadors
