

Esteemed Menos!

My name is Sophos. Myself and my companions have recently been engaged in an archaeological dig at Mount Chalcis in Reikos. Can't let those Archivists get their hands on all the interesting finds first! I won't bore you with the details - you'll have to wait until we publish our findings for that! - but I did want to pass on an invitation. This whole dig has been very successful, despite the interference from the owners of the construction site and the wild unsuitability of the building crews for any kind of delicate work.

I should perhaps explain. A series of lodging houses have been constructed in anticipation of the increased volume of pilgrims travelling through all of Highguard when the Grand Inspiration is completed.

Excavations for a set of luxury mountain retreats uncovered ancient archaeological ruins and certain historical artefacts! Obviously construction was halted while investigations took place, and fortuitously myself and my colleagues were approached to engage with this! It's good to see Highborn learning the value of proper history. The builders keep joking around with us and telling us that we were only brought in because we were the only people willing to work for the pay the architect was willing to offer, but that seems far less plausible than our arete being acknowledged at last. And before I even published my dissertation, no less!

Anyhow, the dig is over. The finds are being displayed, so there's going to be a bit of a do where we all show off the results of our hard work. We all understand the power of building up our Net, so we were wondering if any historically-minded people would be interested in making the trip from Anvil? I have little doubt that the Sentinel Gate, firm in its understanding of the Net of the Heavens as it is, will oblige anyone who should wish to turn up. We can be found at the Dig Site at Chalcis Mount, Reikos around 11:15pm.

Yours in Virtue,

Sophos Lightfall
