

During the season, a very strange thing is brought to your attention in the Halls of Knowledge. A visiting scholar finds, laid out on a table and addressed to Octavius, a package containing a large lump of something very much like multi-coloured honeycomb or wasps's nest, seeping prismatic ink and with an unusual talisman partly embedded in it. With the package is a confusing message, smeared in the ink that has seeped from the comb and written in an odd, angular script.

As best as anyone can surmise, the letter – which is addressing itself to Octavius under a number of best-guess titles, including 'Urizen-lore-paymaster-knower' and 'Urizen-keeper-of-knowledge-and-therefore-of-worth-for-transactions' - was penned by someone calling themselves a 'Myrmidon'. It appears that the sender of the package is attempting to repay some sort of debt considered owed or due to Urizen, and that they believe Octavius to be the appropriate recipient of this.

The repayment itself is, apparently, the talisman.

As to how the package got to where it ended up, that remains a mystery.

(You should receive ribbon ID 13789 and a single Prismatic Ink in your pack)
