

True Patience
Ania's Meeting

Admit One

We spoke last Equinox. I would see you again this Solstice.

You have been selected for the Trial of the Pallid Charm but is that the end of your relationship with the Hungry Wolf?

Those of you attending the trial that are also Winter mages – I invite to demonstrate the depth of your interest in learning through suffering, the depth of your interest in the lessons to be learned from the Tomb King.

I say to all of you. There are steps you have not taken that you could take. There are things that you have not done, that could be done. I am guilty of the same weakness.

Let us meet to discuss this. I have reserved a space at The Sentinel's Repose in the Urizen Camp at half past seven on the Friday evening of the Solstice. I hope to see you there among others who will not be progressing in the Trials but who show great understanding of the wind that blows through the Empty Chamber.

Ania of Necropolis