Over the past three months, a number of Thule warbands of varying sizes have been sighted at The Face of Ikka in Wintermark. Though most of them still remain, one of the smaller bands - known extravagantly as The Black Heart of Karsk - travelled to Oloy, in Karsk, within the last few weeks. raiding the shipments of Ambergelt from the Krevasty Yelta - though these raids seem opportunistic - if anything, incidental to the warband's movements. We don't know why a single group of Thule would force-march all the way from The Face of Ikka in Sermersuaq to Krevasty in Karsk. This in itself is suspicious.

More details:

- The Spellbinder for The Black Heart took a small retinue with him - we predict somewhere around 30-50 troops in the immediate vicinity.
- The Civil Service have identified a conjunction to Oloy in the next few days. We predict a high chance that a very small band of capable individuals could sneak in and gain an advance on the Thule's plans by stealing the Spellbinder's book and any plans for the war effort in Karsk.
- We've sent a Civil Servant - Aderyn Bechod, from Teeth Striding - to scout out more information and be ready to rendezvous, should you decide to send more Imperial Agents through.

May virtue guide your hand.
