

Dear Ambassador

I apologise for this unorthodox method of reaching you but I have urgent information for you regarding Baroness Katerine Levasse . Please be in anvil at 12:15 on Saturday at the end of the main road past the Senate. Enclosed is an amulet precious to me. Please wear it in order for me to identify you in the bustle of anvil.

Please Be there

It was truly a pleasure to meet you in Anvil last summit. Both me and my Companion enjoyed the visit. As was mentioned we have more specific information about an event that concerns the ambassador at this summit. It turns out that their party, Numbering three, will arrive at anvil on Saturday at noon. Unfortunately I can't provide you with more as our relationship with them has rather deteriorated as of late so the nature of their plan and how they wish to go about it is unfortunately a mystery for you to solve. The only certainty is their intent is unpleasant and they will not be dissuaded from acting with words alone, they can only be described as fanatical. I wish you the best in this regard.

As to our Knight and his wife I happen to know that on their noble rescue mission the person leading it offered help to some of my friends abroad. Next summit I believe that we can trade on that bargain in order to push our cause. In the meantime we shall be working hard on finding anything that can help you improve our standing within the empire and set us all on a path to a better future.

With any luck either me or my companion shall return the following summit and I will enclose you another letter warning you if I can make the trip. For now good luck in your endeavours and may our patron keep you in his graces.
