

To the revered Winter Mages of House Remys

I have been going through my friend Yaroslav's records and discover that in the Fog he has let much time lapse since the leaders of your house completed their year wearing Ravening Foci.

With so much of Exquy and the other Heralds intention being taken up with the Trials of the Pallid Charm, the error had not been noted elsewhere either. And so, somewhat belatedly this Solstice I am told that a Herald will travel to the Hall of Worlds at 8 on the first evening of the Solstice with the express purpose of speaking to you, and carrying an offer in the form of an arcane projection.

The Herald will be Carrion, I think, although it may be another. They are to speak with you and yours and also with the Archmage on a separate matter. You need not be distracted by the other Heralds present that are due to be dealing with the Trials.

You will simply need to make an account to Carrion of what wearing the foci taught you – assuming it has not been lost to the fog. Then you will make a decision, once you have read the arcane projection, on whether it is a boon you want. I think that you will. Although perhaps you should bring any friends you have with military units with you to the discussion – because the consequences to suffer are theirs.

I do see in Yaroslav's records that there is a warning he was given by Dessication – that one of you brought flowers to the Empty Chamber once – and so I feel I should remind you to bring no gifts unless they are Dragonbone, and that neither those from the Empty Chamber nor the Tomb King himself have any interest in expressions of love.

I will not be in Anvil myself this summit, so I wish you well
Anya of Highguard

To the revered Winter Mages of House Remys

I have been going through my friend Yaroslav's records and discover that in the Fog he has let much time lapse since the leaders of your house completed their year wearing Ravening Foci.

With so much of Exquy and the other Heralds intention being taken up with the Trials of the Pallid Charm, the error had not been noted elsewhere either. And so, somewhat belatedly this Solstice I am told that a Herald will travel to the Hall of Worlds at 8 on the first evening of the Solstice with the express purpose of speaking to you, and carrying an offer in the form of an arcane projection.

The Herald will be Carrion, I think, although it may be another. They are to speak with you and yours and also with the Archmage on a separate matter. You need not be distracted by the other Heralds present that are due to be dealing with the Trials.

You will simply need to make an account to Carrion of what wearing the foci taught you – assuming it has not been lost to the fog. Then you will make a decision, once you have read the arcane projection, on whether it is a boon you want. I think that you will. Although perhaps you should bring any friends you have with military units with you to the discussion – because the consequences to suffer are theirs.

I do see in Yaroslav's records that there is a warning he was given by Dessication – that one of you brought flowers to the Empty Chamber once – and so I feel I should remind you to bring no gifts unless they are Dragonbone, and that neither those from the Empty Chamber nor the Tomb King himself have any interest in expressions of love.

I will not be in Anvil myself this summit, so I wish you well
Anya of Highguard