

William Guildenstern

Crime has become rife in Anvil since the death of Britta.

The Milita work had but do not seem to be supported as much as they could. You seem like someone who may be open to our support. We will seek you out over the weekend, hopefully we will have the opportunity to speak, away from people who may not understand the complexities involved.

We must work together to make sure that murder and theft do not haunt our nation and to support the new Empress.

I hope that we can reach an accord
